

EconLab Opportunity for 2024-25: RA for Jana Obradovic and Pablo Sanchez

Title: Research Assistant

Openings: One

Project Description:

Jana Obradovic and Pablo Sanchez are seeking a Research Assistant for two ongoing projects related to monetary policy. The first project focuses on the intersection of monetary policy and the housing market and the second project examines the effects of monetary policy on firm behavior. This position offers an excellent opportunity for those interested in monetary economics, housing markets, and finance.

Position Description:

The Research Assistant will be involved in various aspects of data handling, including downloading, cleaning, and organizing datasets. The role also includes preparing graphs and visualizations to support analysis, as well as conducting preliminary literature reviews. Candidates should have a working knowledge of Stata and/or Python.

Application Requirements:

Interested applicants should email janaobradovic@u.northwestern.edu and pablo.sanchez@u.northwestern.edu a copy of their (unofficial) transcript, resume, and a paragraph describing their interest in this project and position. The position is expected to start at the beginning of the Fall quarter and will last at least for the duration of the quarter.